Testing, calibrating, advising

Exova Group acquires BM TRADA Limited

BM TRADA

Dear Mr Iain McIlwee

As a leading and well respected trade association, we understand your role in providing your industry and your members, with a single source of technical expertise, information, knowledge and advice. With that role in mind we felt it very important to advise you that Exova today completed the acquisition of BM TRADA the international provider of certification schemes and building products testing services.

This exciting move will extend our range of certification service, creating a truly global offering and broadening our support to your members in new and existing markets worldwide. We will also now be able to offer both expanded capacity and capabilities in building products testing.

The move will not change the service your members have come to expect from Exova Warringtonfire and BM TRADA. It will give them access to a wider scope of services in testing, as well as a broader range of management certification services. We can also now support their needs with increased capacity to help meet their commercial goals. By bringing our two teams together, I also hope your members will benefit from a greater combined depth of technical knowledge and competence.

All internationally recognised product and installer certification schemes will be retained, giving your members a wider choice, an extension of scope and a potential for a more streamlined annual auditing process in the future, reducing both time and cost for their operations.

I look forward to furthering our valued relationship
